Piscataqua Press, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 276 x 214 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .There is a worldwide rapid awakening to the profound need for communities to act to protect and heal our most vulnerable citizens, women and children. A horrific rape in Delhi, a gang rape in US videoed to classmates, a Pakistani girl shot for the crime of seeking an education, these cases and more have galvanized public outrage and led to a global outcry for practical solutions. We simply cannot wait for government solutions to fix what ails our world. Maher is one proven model of community-based action with sixteen years, over 2500 women and nearly 2300 children, and overwhelmingly successful outcomes. This book comes along at just the right time to detail how to replicate Maher s success, whether in its home in India, or in Africa, Southeast Asia, or even in the West. From envisioning an organization, to space design, to staffing, to dealing with challenges, there are plans, tips, lessons learned, and case studies from Maher, even templates for budgets, admissions records, etc. There is enough detail to save having to reinvent the wheel, plus guidelines to support each organization to develop uniquely, thereby able to fit into its own local context. Author s Note: inside Since first agreeing to write this book, two things have heightened my urgency and commitment to this project. One, I have experienced firsthand the amazing unique community that is Maher, I have come to know some truly stellar young people, some from broken homes, some rescued from the streets. Having grown up the last 10-15 years at Maher, they have developed into exemplary young men and women. Women who were at risk of being murdered, or were tossed to...
